The Castalian Fountain.

[From Blackwood's Magazine.] CLEOPATRA.

Here, Charmian, take my bracelet, they bar with a purple stain My arm, turn over my pillow.

They are not where I have lain. Open the lattice wider, A gossamer on my brow throw, And let me inhale the odors That come from the garden blow.

I dreamed I was with my Anthony, And in his arms I lay, Ah, me! the vision has vanished— His music has died away!

The flame that once perfumed have perished— As this spiced aromatic paste! That would the blue smoke of its odor Is now but an airy haze.

Scatter upon me rose-leaves, They cool me after my sleep, And with sandal odors I breathe Till into my veins they creep; Reach down the tute, and play me A melancholy tune.

To rhyme with the dream that has vanished, And the slumbering afternoon.

There, drowsing in golden slumber, Lingers the slow amethyst Nile, Through slender pipes, that cover The lotus leaves on the water.

And opens its heart of gold, And the lotus leaves on the water, Never a ripple ripples.

The twilight breeze is too lax, Those fetid palms to wave, The flame that once perfumed have perished— As this spiced aromatic paste!

As a stone above a grave.

Al, me! this lifeless nature, Oppresses my heart and brain! Oh, for a storm and thunder— For lightning and wild fire rain!

The Cholera and its Treatment.

The following letter from Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., who has been for many years a resident in Constantinople, as a missionary of the American Board, to the Christian Mirror, gives the best view of the cholera and its treatment that we have seen.

As the pestilence has already reached our shores, and is evidently making its way westward, it will for every one forewarned to be forearmed against it.

In a communication addressed to the Mayor of Burlington, under date of November 1, Dr. Thayer, Surgeon General of the State, says:

"Cholera, in its westward course, is rapidly approaching this continent, and in a few months more may be sweeping over this country more fatal and wide-spread than ever before."

DEAR SIR: The cholera which has just left us, after committing fearful ravages, is making its way westward, and will probably cross the Atlantic before another summer has passed.

Having been providentially compelled to have a good degree of practical acquaintance with it, and to see it in all its forms and stages during each of its invasions of Constantinople, I wish to make my friends in Maine some suggestions which may relieve anxiety, or be of practical use.

1. On the approach of the cholera, every family should be prepared to treat it without waiting for a physician. It does its worst work before the doctor is called, and waiting for the doctor is not only useless, but often fatal.

2. If you prepare for it, it will not come. I think there is no disease which may be avoided with so much certainty as the cholera. But providential circumstances, or the thoughtless indiscretion of some member of a household may invite its attack, and the challenge will never be refused. It will probably be made in the night, your physician has been called in another direction, and you must treat the case yourself, or it will prove fatal.

3. Causes of attack. I have personally investigated at least a hundred cases, and not less than three-fourths could be traced directly to improper diet, or to intoxicating drinks, or both united. Of the remainder, suppressed perspiration would comprise a large number. A strong, healthy, temperate laboring man had a severe attack of the cholera, and after a day or two he passed.

He was curious to ascertain the cause. He had been cautious and prudent in his diet. He used nothing intoxicating. His residence was in a good locality. But after some hours of hard labor and profuse perspiration, he had lain down to take his customary noon nap, right against an open window through which a very refreshing breeze was blowing. Another cause is drinking largely of cold water when hot and thirsty. Great fatigue, great anxiety, fright, fear, all figure among exciting causes. If you can avoid these, these are as safe from the cholera as from being swept away by a comet.

4. Symptoms of an attack. While cholera is prevalent in a place, almost every experience, more or less, disturbance of digestion. It
